The Cats' Friendly.
City

In the evening times, I often hear the cats' meowing from the backyard.

Bandy and Whitey are both kittens.
They often play around with each other.

Sometimes, it's Kitty's meowing
and sometimes, it's Fifi's meowing.

Occasionally, Pacco and Babe fight with each other.

While they are all cute, sometimes they make troubles such as fighting for food and territory.....They cry out like babies.

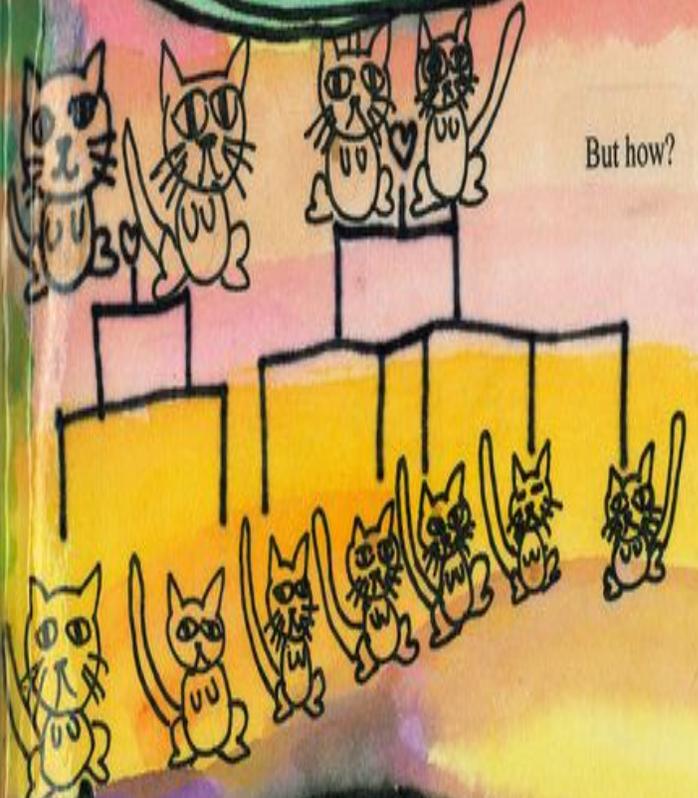

One day, some cat-lover volunteers visited our community.

They talked to our Community Chair
and proposed a TNR Plan.

T.N.R.

This plan helps control the birth of cats
and helps the environment.

But how?

1. Trap

3. Release

2. Neuter

NEUTER

The volunteers would mark the cats which have been neutered by cutting a tiny part of their ears. I think it must be hurt!

After a week,

Kitty and Fifi came back.

Although their ears were different, they still looked cute.

Gradually, it became quieter at night.

There are less rats and cockroaches in our community.

Maybe it's because the cats expelled them.

My mom and I would feed the cats
when we would take a walk around here.

The cats are also nice to us.
They are really our best neighbors!
